

(This is a syllabus for a first-year master's course. There were roughly twenty-five students enrolled in the course. About ten of these opted to do in-class presentations; the remainder wrote papers.)

UE 6 PHILOSOPHIE DES SCIENCES

8 ECTS – 24H CM/TD

Kourken MICHAELIAN

Ce cours de philosophie de la psychologie traitera d'erreurs mnésiques telles que la fabulation. A la suite d'une discussion de l'histoire de la notion de fabulation, nous étudierons des théories contemporaines du phénomène ainsi que les débats philosophiques occasionnés par ces dernières.

Modalités de contrôle de connaissances : Soit un travail écrit soit un exposé en cours.

Planning :

21/01/2020

séance d'introduction

28/02/2020

Berrios, G. E. (1998). Confabulations: a conceptual history. Journal of the History of the Neurosciences, 7(3), 225-241.

04/02/2020

Hirstein, W. (2009). The name and nature of confabulation. In J. Symons & P. Calvo (Eds.), The Routledge Companion to Philosophy of Psychology (pp. 647–658). London: Routledge.

Hirstein, W. (2011). Confabulations about personal memories, normal and abnormal. In S. Nalbantian, P. M. Matthews, & J. L. McClelland (Eds.), The Memory Process: Neuroscientific and Humanistic Perspectives (pp. 217–232). Cambridge, MA: MIT Press.

11/02/2020

Dalla Barba, G. (2009). Temporal consciousness and confabulation: Escape from unconscious explanatory idols. In W. Hirstein (Ed.), Confabulation: Views from Neuroscience, Psychiatry, Psychology and Philosophy (pp. 223–260). Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Dalla Barba, G. (2016). Temporal consciousness and confabulation: When mental time travel takes the wrong track. In K. Michaelian, S. B. Klein, & K. K. Szpunar (Eds.), Seeing The Future: Theoretical Perspectives on Future-Oriented Mental Time Travel (pp. 119–134). New York: Oxford University Press.

18/02/2020

Robins, S. K. (2016). Misremembering. Philosophical Psychology, 29(3), 432–447.

03/03/2020

Robins, S. K. (2019). Confabulation and constructive memory. Synthese, 196(6), 2135–2151.

10/03/2020

Baysan, U. (2018). Memory, confabulation, and epistemic failure. Logos & Episteme, 9(4), 369–378.

17/03/2020

séance annulée dû au coronavirus

24/03/2020

Michaelian, K. (2016). Confabulating, misremembering, relearning: The simulation theory of memory and unsuccessful remembering. Frontiers in Psychology, 7, 1857.

31/03/2020

Bernecker, S. (2017). A causal theory of mnemonic confabulation. Frontiers in Psychology, 8, 1207.

07/04/2020

Michaelian, K. (2020). Confabulating as unreliable imagining: In defence of the simulationist account of unsuccessful remembering. Topoi, 39(1), 133–148.

14/04/2020

Robins, S. K. (2020). Mnemonic confabulation. Topoi, 39(1), 121–132.

28/04/2020

Bortolotti, L., & Cox, R. E. (2009). ‘Faultless’ ignorance: Strengths and limitations of epistemic definitions of confabulation. Consciousness and Cognition, 18(4), 952–965.